Cliff Top Kennels Re-Homing Centre Appeal

Our charity is run by a very small but dedicated group of volunteers and over recent years that group has become even smaller. As a valued supporter of our charity we are hoping that you might be able to contribute to our continuing endeavours to find homes for unwanted, abandoned and stray dogs in the Scarborough area.

How can you help?

Your contribution could be any one or all of the following; your time, your ideas, your skills

We urgently require new committee members. The committee meets once a month (on the first Monday) and traditionally committee members help out and support fundraising events where possible.

We would very much like to set up a dedicated fundraising group who would plan our fundraising calendar - we need fresh ideas and new faces to help raise vital funds to help us look after the dogs in our care. Fundraising ideas can be for individuals or groups and from small events to large.

If you would like to get involved either by joining the committee or being part of a fundraising group, please get in touch with us.

Even if you feel that joining the committee or being part of a fundraising group is too much of a commitment at the moment but you have any ideas that might help us out, then we would love to hear from you too.

We can be contacted by phone on 01723 870456 or by e-mail jill@clifftopboardingkennels.com or by post to Cliff Top Boarding Kennels, Rocks Lane, Burniston, Scarborough, YO13 OHX.

SUCCESS STORY

CHESTER aka DEXTER

Dexter (now Chester) the little dalmatian we adopted from you in August 2018, is an absolutely adorable little dog with lots of character! He and our other dog Dax (6 year old black lab) are inseparable and have proved to be good for each other. He is calm most of the time (he is still only 10 months) is responding well to daily training, and play and has woven his way into all our hearts. We expected him to trash the Christmas tree when we put it up, but he hasn't been near it! He loves to snuggle with Dax in front of the fire (they always share a bed even though they have one each) on an evening and even watches tv!

Looking forward to our first family Christmas with both dogs. Lots of fun and walks. Thank you once again for allowing us to adopt him.

If you have a success story you would like to share, please drop us a line at jill@clifftopboardingkennels.com

We love to hear how our re-homed dogs are getting on with their new families.

Every three months these Lifelines are collected, turned into money and sent out to the charities in the shape of a Pets at Home store gift card for us to spend to help the dogs in our charity's care.

Toxocara Canis

During last year's summer holidays I looked after my grandchildren, and just recently I was clearing out the play area at the bottom of the garden, which included a big tray of sand that the children had happily played in most days. It was only then that I remembered article I had recently read about the dangers that can lurk in the sand that the children love to play in.

Toxocara Canis is by some people regarded as a disease which has long been treated and therefore the risk of infection is very low. Surprisingly, a recent soil survey in urban areas, such as town parks, revealed that 20% of the soil surveyed contained Toxocara eggs. Apparently while infection is rare in adult pet dogs they still account for a significant proportion of the eggs entering the environment. There is a higher prevalence in cats than in dogs, especially in hunters that catch infected rodents and birds. Although, unfortunately, the family Labrador also considers that it is a hunter, and quickly swallows whole anything dead or dying it might find before it can be removed from its jaws! Cats love to use sand pits as their personal outdoor toilet.

Toxocara can infect people if they accidentally ingest infective eggs, larvae hatch and migrate to many organs, including the eyes, which will cause blindness. Direct infection is, because of the treatment that domestic animals are given is becoming, thankfully, rarer, but undiagnosed covert infection is quite common and linked to a wide variety of clinical effects, and some reports suggest connections with epilepsy and asthma.

A missed worming dose seems to have no noticeable consequences so bad worming practise can creep into our routines. Also kittens and pups must be treated from two or three weeks old in an ideal world, but obviously when pups or kittens are brought into the household, there is no way of knowing their back history, as is often the case with older adopted animals, so a comprehensive programme of worming must be put in place. It is important, especially with children in the house. The best way to address this problem is to visit your veterinary practise who will be able to advise on either monthly or three monthly medication to eliminate the problem. It is surprisingly necessary, as animals seen for the first time by your vet often show up positive results to infestation. Pets on a preventative regime remain clear which is obviously a positive result.

We are all aware of the recommendation of regular worming in cats and dogs, but like all routines, the reason for them is often forgotten. The new information on human health risks and the availability of more detailed data on pets as the source of infective eggs in the environment should
